In every department but one, structural steel, the tendency is toward decidedly higher levels, especially if there should develop any difficulty in obtaining idequate supplies of coal. The building idequate supplies of coal. The building irade looks for $86 steel, but even this price is far above levels ruling in antewar days. The difference between $140 a ton steel to-day and the possible $86 steel next spring or summer, as applied to the builder, according to the Beais to the builder, according to the Beais report, is that between a prohibited building operation and one on which the marking operation and one of the building operation and one of the building operation and one of the building operation of the building operation and the possible $8.00 operation and the p

Investing builders are guided by two conditions to-day. If they proceed it is secause they are assured of an immediate sale or complete rental, as in the asse of special buildings. Projected outlidings have been deferred because they felt sure that building material. rices would go down as soon as steel lectined. The Hudson River brick situation remains unchanged, the prices being quoted at from $8 to $8.25 a thousand

The copner situation is somewhat price of 23.50 cents a pound and de-liveries on contracts were forbidden. Consumers, however, are now assured that they will be able to obtain supplies as the combined requirements of the Federal Government and the Allies will be 120,000,000 pounds a month for the last quarter. This should leave about 80,000,000 pounds a month for private 80,000,000 pounds a month for private consumption.

On October 10 a new schedule of prices on window glass went into effect. The prices are contingent on orders placed before that date, subject to stock on hand and such supplies as manufacturers desire to sell. No announcement has been made as to the wage scale. The men have demanded a 40 per cent increase, and this raise is considered exorbitant. Unless concessions are made from this figure, glass prices per cent, increase, and this raise is considered exorbitant. Unless concessions are made from this figure, glass prices will increase. The new schedule of discounts affecting the glass industry is as follows: B, single thick, first three brackets, 80 and 20 per cent.; A and B, single thick, ghove the first three brackets, 80 and 20 per cent. and 10 per cent.; A. double thick, 80 and 10 per cent., and B. double thick, 80 and 15 per cent., subject to change

COAL AFFECTS STEEL OUTPUT. While it is too soon to feel the effects of the President's approval of the new steel schedule, nevertheless builders anticipate obtaining results from the new prices which will do much toward stimulating new construction work, according to the Record and Guide. The mills have promised to use every effort to bring the production as nearly as possible up to the demand. It is felt possible up to the demand. It is felt in many quarters that dovernmental equirements have been overestimated and that were work speeded up at the mills there would be enough surplus left to provide for the fulfilling of private contracts. The supplying of the Pennsylvania Railroad with coai, it is felt, will hasten deliveries and thus lessen one of the big retardant factors which
